Naily Bullefin Pledged to neither Sect nor Party,

But established for the benefit of all.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 15, 1889.

It is said that a Missouri Congressman is trying to get a colored gentleman appointed to the Hawaiian Mission. There is "a nigger in de fence" somewhere.

Talk of long speeches in the Ha wallan Legislature! A gentleman recently from the Colonies said that. while he was visiting the New Zen land Legislature, three Maori members engaged in "stone-walling" a bill, spoke eight hours each in rotation, thus occupying twenty-four hours of the "valuable time" of the House.

A strange disease in Miura-gun. within the ken where . Yokohama is situated, has caused disagreement among the doctors. Mr. Kimura Junkichi, naval surgeon, believes the malady is caused by eating poisonous oysters. He says that when he was studying in Michigan, United States, the doctor who instructed him made the discovery of the same disease in that country, being rewarded with a prize of $800 by the American Government.

The San Francisco Alta has always, at least under its present management, firmly stood for the Hawaiian treaty. Its article on the Hawaiian Mission copied in this paper is only in keeping with its commendable record as a champion of the most intimate relations between the United States and this country. The sentiments of the Alta regarding the men required for this post must commend themselves to reflective American minds.

There is a serious state of affairs under the Board of Health on the island of Hawaii. Since Dr. Raymend's departure some time ago, there has been no Government physician in Kau. Waiohinu, the judicial seat of the district, has Dr. Oliver, but he is too ill to practise. It is said, further, that there is no Government physician in Kona. This condition of things should be ended at once if only by temporary arrangements. At present sick folk in those regions have to come to Honolulu for treatment if able to be moved or to stand the expense.

THE MARSHALL ISLANDS.

Mr. E. M. Morgan, United States Consular Agent at Jaluit, who is known to many in this country, made a report to the Department of State on the Marshall Islands, which has lately been published. From a summary of his report in an exchange the following particulars are culled.

The commercial interests of the Marshall Islands are in the hands of the Jaluit Gesellschaft, a German firm organized in Hamburg; Messrs. A. Crawford & Co., an American firm of San Francisco, Cal., and Messrs. Henderson & McFarlane of Auckland, New Zealand. The first two named companies have their headquarters at Jaluit, the port of entry, while the latter are located at an island named Majuro, some 130 miles to the eastward of Jaluit. All the aforesaid firms extend their operations to the neighboring groups of islands, viz., Kingsmill, Caroline, Ellice, and Pleasant islands.

The product of the islands consists chiefly of copra. Shells, red and pink coral and sponge are found in limited quantities. The natives make a great number of mats, hats and fans from the fibre of the cocoanut and other native trees. The yearly yield of copra js about 3,-000,000 pounds, the greatest portion of which is shipped to Europe. The price paid therefor to natives is 1 cent per pound; to traders 14 cents, and about 3 to 37 cents per pound is procured in Europe.

There is a good demand for American goods, especially provisions, hardware, thread, denim and clothing, and excellent prices are obtainable therefor. Fire-arms and ammunition of all kinds are prohibited from sale. Beer is the only beverage permitted to be sold to the natives, and but very little of that is used by them, as they are very temperate. Tobacco is in great demand, the kind being known as "Niggerhead."

The currency had been Chilian German coin was declared the legal | ton Courier.

tender. Then the German firm that imported the South American money and circulated it at par with United States coin, refused to accept it except at a discount of 374 per cent. They made no offer to redeem it, and did not give notice of even one week that the coin was to be depreciated. The natives are dissatisfied and think the Government is doing them injustice, as they pay a yearly tax in return for the German promise to protect them. They prefer American coin and will exchange their produce therefor when nothing else would purchase it. The imports from the United States (San Francisco) to the group of islands during 1888 amounted to $38,000. The export of copra by the firm of A. Crawford & Co. alone, during the same period, amounted to 1,555,616 pounds, valued at $35,-000. Since the 15th day of October, 1885, the Marshall Islands have been under the protectorate of the German Government. April 14, 1888, Pleasant Island was declared to be under the same protectorate. If we remember rightly, the Kingsmill group has been added since Mr. Morgan made his report. At all events, he mentions that a movement was on foot with that object. The Kingsmills are much more productive than the Marshalls; and a much larger volume of business is done there, especially by American

The Marshall protectorate is administered by a High Commissioner, who at intervals publishes laws or regulations for the government of the islands. Up to the report these edicts consisted of harbor regulations, prohibition of trade in liquor and arms, etc., and of credit in any form, and of the purchase or rental of lands; the imposition of a license fee of $250 per trip on vessels not belonging to a firm on the island, and the levying of other taxes and licenses. Each foreigner has to pay $2 a year poll tax. A license fee of $10 per year is paid by each trader. Firms doing a business of $125,000 or more per year have to pay an annual license of $1,500, and firms doing a less amount of business, $750. The natives are required to pay a yearly tax of $2,000, payable in copra to the Jaluit Gesellschaft at the rate of one cent per pound. They would prefer to pay in money but are not allowed, consequently the Gesellschaft reaps all the profit on the copra. The representative of Messrs. A. Crawford & Co. filed with the High Commissioner a protest against the enforcement of the regulation prohibiting the leasing of lands. The High Commissioner assured him that he would at once bring it to the attention of his Government, and also that he felt convinced that it would be modified, as he would certainly recommend its modification. If enforced, the regulation would almost, if not quite ruin the business of the protesting firm, as well as that of Messrs. Henderson & McFarlane, in the islands.

TAHITI NEWS.

From a private letter received in this city dated Papeete. March 16th, the following is clipped: The steamer Richmond is now bar-bound in Papara as the heaviest gale known for years is just blowing itself out, a terrible sea breaking right across Papeete Pass; also three schooners La Gironde, Lorely and Etta drifted from upper wharf almost to passage. Lorely got on shore close to Motuiti but towed off without damage. Cocoanut, breadfruit, purau and pakai trees blown up by the roots; so far no lives lost. Last week Fautaua river changed its bed and nearly all the bridges are down between here and Atimaono. Fautaua was partly destroyed. You can see Pater's Mill from the road and Narii Salmon's house. Smidt's house was not moved, although they moved out. The embankment behind Walker's house caved and the water poured through his garden and house. Raoul, in fact the whole place was flooded and considerable damage done. S. Co. lost considerable copra, etc., etc.; luckily for them they had just shipped bootons. To-day at 7 a. m. a breadfruit tree at the Milo feli on Smidt, the engineer's house, smashing in the end. Streets are all impassable on account of fallen purau trees. The C. of P. was six days getting in after she was signaled and has been unable to work since her arrival on account of rain.

THE HAWAIIAN MISSION.

The Pacific Coast has a great interest in the manner of man who gets the Hawaiian Mission. Whether ie is a Coast man or not, he must be made to know the stake we have in those islands. We have recently had a lesson in the need of having as Consul to Apia a man with better diplomatic judgment and qualification, than are required at London. Paris or Berlin. Yet it is a remote post, away in the South Pacific, but t was the scene of complications which might have easily led to a war involving three or more great nations. The world's peace, indeed, was for a time at the mercy of a couple of $1500 Consuls.

The next focus of international disturbance in the Pacific is at Honolulu. Hawaii is the grand prize, while Samoa was merely an approximation prize. Hawaii is the key to the isthmian canal, when one is built, but it is also the sole seaward shelter of this Pacific Neutralized, it is worth more to us than all the coast defenses and armored ships that could be built In the hands of a possibly unfriendly power it would have like a mortgage upon every bit of property in California, because one element of safety would be lost.

Aside from such considerations is the maintenance of the existing treaty upon which they all depend. There are men here who are treacherons to the best interests of our people and for private greed or grudge they desire to abrogate that treaty. The constitution of our community is such that our people will likely be indifferent until this treaty is lost, and then they will have a spasm of quite futile rage, when it is too late.

The conspirators against the treaty are keenly alive to all this and have their programme for the diplomatic and consular appointments as well as their plans rooted in court polities in Honolulu. The amount at stake is large. It is equal to the total advantage which the Sugar Trusts expects from the exclusion of raw sugar, for putting upon it a duty means that it must seek elsewhere a market. To give the conspiracy its way in the Hawaiian appointments will be scandalous. To send weak men there at all will be

There was a time in which the court of Denmark was the center of European diplomacy. Russia and England and Greece were intermarried with or furnished rulers by the house of Schleswig-Holstein-Sonderborg-Glucksburg.

The interests of that house extended from the Thames to the plain of Marathon, and the politics of all Europe and of the Black Sea and the Golden Horn were talked at Copenhagen Then any government that had interests anywhere between the delta of the Nile and the Skagger Rack needed sharp eyes and keen wits in the court of King Christian.

Realizing this, General Grant offered that mission to one of the most distinguished of Western Republican Senators and ex-Governors and not knowing it, the distinguished Senator declined to go to Denmark. Honolulu is liable at every moment to be the scene of the most important diplomatic intrigues and international events. We have far more imme diate interests there than we ever had at the court of King Christian. Hawaii is on our side of the earth. Its people have partaken of our civilization and its King is our royal friend. Our capital has stimulated enterprise there and contributed to the prosperity of the country. Let no personal favoritism nor the payment of any political debt prevent the sending there of a firstclass man, one who will have proper respect for the King and country, and a proper conception of the mutual importance of the two countries to each other.

Hawaii is more interesting to us than any other Pacific country and we should treat it with corresponding dignity and consideration. - [S. F. Alta, May 1.

A steam yacht, built in England, lately made a remarkable voyage by sailing across the channel, up the river Seine, and thence by canals and river to Marseilles, on the Mediterranean Sea.

The speech of Sir Charles Russell before the Parnell Commission is pronounced the greatest forensic effort of this generation. Even Tories say so. David Dudley Field, who heard the effort, concurred.

The British House of Lords lately decided that a verbatim report of a Judge's charge may be libelous, if the Judge did not fully review both sides of the case. Another amendment of the British Constitution.
